

Transportation and Logistics

At the forefront of the Southeast's transportation and logistics industry, Chambliss removes legal obstacles and identifies opportunities for trucking companies, third-party logistics providers, equipment manufacturers, and others leading the industry.

Our team has advised, represented, and defended clients in the transportation and logistics industry for many decades. We've seen the rapid growth of the industry in our hometown and have used that experience to counsel regional clients and beyond. Using a multidisciplinary approach, we address a variety of legal needs, ranging from regulatory investigations to labor and employment issues. Our firm has substantial experience with supply chain management, environmental and real estate matters, intellectual property protection, and considerations for sustainability. Our client base is broad and includes full-service transportation and third-party logistics firms, asset-based trucking companies, and a metropolitan airport, and we also work with related clients, such as distributors and suppliers. We advise on contracts and agreements, capital equipment, personnel, workplace safety and health, taxes, and transactions.

We are here as a go-to resource for the day-to-day, but we're also fully prepared to guide our clients through mergers, acquisitions, joint ventures, and dispositions. We have a track record of success defending our clients in state and federal courts over matters related to products liability, personal injury, and labor and employment. As consumer demand rises, our clients' opportunities and challenges can be exponentially affected. No matter the situation, we will remain proactive in our approach and will do all we can to obtain excellent results for our clients.
