

Logan Threadgill Featured as a “Rising Star” by Chattanooga Times Free Press

The Chattanooga Times Free Press published “Logan Threadgill of Chambliss, Bahner, Stophel Rolls From Soccer Prodigy to Legal Player,” an article highlighting Logan’s journey to his legal career. Logan shared how he played Division I soccer throughout college and now uses his discipline and drive learned in training toward helping his clients.

Logan is an associate and represents clients in a broad spectrum of commercial litigation matters. He has extensive experience working on construction cases, contract and payment disputes, product liability cases, and Chapter 7, Chapter 11, and Chapter 13 bankruptcy proceedings. Logan enjoys working with clients to creatively resolve their legal issues in the most efficient and effective manner so more time and energy can be used to focus on running the business. He is a board member for the Young Lawyers Divisions of the Chattanooga Bar Association and Tennessee Bar Association. For more details on his practice and experience, please visit Logan's bio.
