I love getting to know my clients, understanding their needs on a deeper level, and devising effective solutions to bring them through what are often the most stressful moments of their lives.

Alexander Blankers specializes in complex commercial and business litigation, with a strong focus on construction and real estate matters. He represents businesses in cases involving defective design, construction claims, warranty issues, payment disputes, breach of contract, product liability, and fraud. Clients routinely seek Alexander's guidance on construction-related disputes, including those arising from differing site conditions, change orders, and other critical project challenges. He is also well-versed in representing banks in litigation concerning loan transactions, real estate lending, and foreclosure proceedings. Alexander is committed to cost-effective outcomes and aims to resolve disputes without litigation, counseling clients on alternative settlement routes such as mediation or arbitration.

Alexander ensures he thoroughly understands his clients' objectives from the start. His business acumen and natural ability to grasp his clients' operational goals foster a collaborative partnership, where together, they develop creative solutions to overcome challenges and achieve optimal outcomes. With a client-focused approach, Alexander believes that a strong attorney-client relationship is built on clear communication and mutual understanding. His unique background as a registered nurse provides him with invaluable experience as a client advocate, a skill he continues to apply to his practice at Chambliss.

Sidebar

Originally from California, Alexander was commissioned into the U.S. Navy upon graduation from Westminster University in Salt Lake City, Utah, and served as a registered nurse for six years, attaining the rank of lieutenant, before being honorably discharged and attending law school. As an RN, Alexander worked in inpatient psychiatry and inpatient pediatrics (general, hematology and oncology) in San Diego. He also served as a neonatal resuscitation program instructor on a multiservice ward in Naples, Italy.

When he's not advocating for his clients, Alexander can typically be found exploring the outdoors with his wife and young son or trying to find someone to play tennis or pickleball with. He is also passionate about discussing the intersection of law, religion, and philosophy.
