I enjoy solving problems and helping people. In addition to being known for my ability to connect dots and see commonly overlooked threads, I am determined to find the most timely and cost-effective path. My specialties include relationship building, learning agility, a drive to succeed, perseverance, and resiliency.

Eric Kaulfuss brings over 25 years of human resources and corporate experience to Chambliss. As an impactful and supportive leader, he understands how to partner with internal and external shareholders to cultivate sustainable customer relationships that drive profitability. Eric is often recognized for devising effective strategies and executing cost-reduction initiatives for negotiation with vendors and customers. Eric is instrumental in developing exceptionally productive and motivated teams and has proven positive results in company turnaround and revitalization.

Eric is a certified executive coach by the Gallup Strengths program, which focuses on individual and team development. In addition, he is known for his innovative talent acquisition, learning, and team effectiveness solutions.
