I enjoy tackling challenges head-on, leveraging creativity and ingenuity to solve problems and deliver desirable outcomes for my clients.

Mitch Barton represents health care, nonprofit, and corporate clients, where he frequently provides counsel on matters involving corporate governance, policy development, commercial contract negotiation, and risk management. In addition, clients seek his counsel on a range of health care matters, such as regulatory compliance, fraud and abuse, HIPAA compliance, licensing, reimbursement, and corporate documentation. His experience extends to statutory and regulatory compliance, economic development, and nonprofit formation. Some of his notable projects include managing complex organizational changes for a municipal energy company, spearheading local housing incentives, facilitating leases, supporting the implementation of tax increment financing for a regional development, and ensuring ongoing compliance with industry regulations across various sectors. Mitch's goal is to leverage his knowledge to provide comprehensive legal solutions and strategic guidance to clients across multiple industries.

Drawing on his background as in-house counsel, Mitch understands the complexities and challenges clients face from a legal perspective and also from a managerial standpoint. This unique perspective allows him to provide holistic representation tailored to each client's specific needs. He tackles challenges with a team-first approach and is known for his unwavering loyalty and reliability. He's passionate about making a difference in his clients' lives, offering practical solutions with a friendly demeanor.
