I feel the work I do is important because it directly affects lives, even for generations. It is important that I give each client unique, thoughtful, and diligent care in whatever matters arise.

Lydia Boydston brings a decade of legal experience to Chambliss' estate planning section, assisting clients in managing their assets with trusts tailored to their own unique needs. She has also assisted high net worth individuals with LLC formations, estate planning, and asset protection strategies. Additionally, Lydia's appreciation for mathematics enhances her analytical approach to complex planning processes. Looking ahead, she is committed to assisting clients in managing their assets through trusts tailored to their unique needs. Driven by a passion for aiding others, Lydia's loyalty and prompt attention to her clients and their needs are unwavering.

Before joining Chambliss, Lydia acquired a wide variety of experience in various sectors of the legal industry and in state, federal, and appellate courts, including insurance defense, civil rights, construction defects, products liability, wrongful death actions, mass torts, LLC formations, domestic and family law, Social Security disability appeals, and personal injury. Among other accomplishments, she assisted in the successful resolution of a multimillion-dollar wrongful death and negligent infliction of emotional distress action. Her keen attention to detail and a strong desire to help anyone in need fuel her passion for the legal industry. A hard worker who leaves no problem unsolved and meets challenges head on, clients can trust Lydia to lead them in the right direction, navigating complex legal matters with precision and care.
