

Commercial Contracts

---

Chambliss corporate attorneys routinely draft and review all types of commercial contracts, including those relating to the sale or purchase of goods or services, construction, capital equipment and materials, product distribution, lease arrangements, investment securities, technology, and licensing arrangements. Our team understands the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) and how federal and state laws apply to your unique business needs.

Negotiating commercial contracts can be a complicated process with numerous legal and commercial factors to consider in helping parties achieve their objectives. Protecting your business and assets is of utmost important to us, and we help our clients navigate intellectual property ownership and development, governance issues, potential liability and regulatory requirements regularly. We work to support our client's needs and budget, while ensuring our clients are properly protected from business risks that could undermine a particular transaction. Creating strong contracts that facilitate business relationships is our specialty, and we help ensure you receive the full benefits of these legal documents.

Chambliss lawyers advise clients on a wide variety of commercial contracts, including:

- Purchase and sale agreements
- Standard terms and conditions for both goods and services
- Consulting and other service agreements
- Distribution agreements
- License agreements
