Ahead of the curve, Chambliss’ health care team guides industry leaders around the U.S. on the latest laws and regulations that drive their most important decisions. Known as responsive, trusted, and well-connected counsel – we share our intimate knowledge and relevant experience with clients leading public and private health care and billing companies, provider groups, home and community-based care organizations, and investors on matters related to M&A, revenue cycle management, compliance, privacy, litigation, and beyond.

We are a dynamic practice whose personality reflects the myriad of laws within the industry and our diverse set of clients. In the morning, we might sit down with a physician to resolve an investigation from a state licensing board. At lunch, we may jump on a call with a private equity firm to re-structure a complex acquisition to deal with unique state laws. Early afternoon could include an unexpected trip to the court to enforce a non-compete against a former employee. At day’s end, we might chuckle over a client’s email thanking us for providing them an interpretation of a particularly weird Medicare regulation.

We have clients in just about every niche in health care, including:

What We See on the Horizon

Contact our Chambliss health care team for our latest insights:

- Physician mergers and acquisitions continue to drive growth in the industry. However, whereas hospitals were leading the push to acquire practices just a few years ago, now there are a number of “non-traditional” buyers (private equity, venture capital, MSOs, etc.) competing in the marketplace creating a challenging, yet exciting, M&A environment.
- Health care privacy and security compliance obligations are becoming increasingly complex and multi-layered. While the federal government continues to refine its longstanding HIPAA and substance use disorder patient records confidentiality regimes, states are currently very active in updating and expanding their own privacy, security, and breach notification laws. California recently enacted its comprehensive consumer privacy law, the California Consumer Privacy Act, which impacts both health care and numerous other industries, and other states are seriously considering similar laws.
- Government fraud investigators are not just targeting large health care systems, but also individual providers and smaller community-based providers. In fact, the Office of Inspector General has identified home and community-based providers, such as home health and hospice, as key enforcement targets in 2020.
