

Software, Website, and Domain Names

Chambliss is the go-to legal resource for emerging and established software companies throughout the U.S., as well as companies with major software vendor arrangements. Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) and cloud-based services have transformed the software industry. Our intellectual property and business attorneys provide timely advice on daily business decisions and are proactive in protecting their clients' valuable software products and data. Clients across a broad spectrum of industries look to us for advice regarding SaaS, strategic software licensing and software development agreements, website privacy policies and terms of use, intellectual property ownership and protection, intellectual property infringement disputes, and acquisition and protection of domain names. Software vendors and customers depend on our attorneys to help them understand how to structure competitive service agreements, negotiate provisions that reflect the market, and protect their valuable assets.

Our attorneys have extensive experience with HIPAA, CCPA, GDPR and other consumer compliance regulations, as well as cybersecurity and data privacy policies. In addition, we have guided national corporations and small businesses through unfortunate data breaches, from ransomware attacks to employee information theft. In today's evolving digital world, we remain up-to-date on the latest trends, challenges, and regulations and serve some of the nation's leading innovators in financial services, telemedicine, big data and analytics, and e-commerce.
