

Trade Secrets

From inventors to international corporations – we've been earning the trust of our clients for over 130 years. As our world becomes more connected through technology and service, our measures for protecting our clients' trade secrets continue to evolve to yield the highest levels of protection. Our intellectual property attorneys advise clients in a wide variety of industries on all matters related to trade secrets, including the identification of trade secrets and the measures that must be taken to protect them. We have substantial experience with non-competition agreements, non-disclosure and confidentiality agreements, and drafting operational procedures to ensure data security.

We serve as trusted advisors and work closely with clients to develop an intimate knowledge of their business operations in order to protect their most precious data and processes. Should an issue arise, our team provides timely, strategic advice and will represent and defend clients in litigation. We have experience handling misappropriation of trade secret claims and employment suits related to violations of confidentiality agreements. We are meticulous in our efforts to protect our clients' trade secrets and appreciate their trust and confidence in our team.
