

The American Leader Cites Cal Marshall on Tennessee Telemedicine Restrictions

The American Leader published "Tennessee Law Lifts Telemedicine Restrictions for Duration of Pandemic," highlighting the law passed during a special session in August allowing telehealth coverage to be expanded until April 2022. This article explains state laws, national telehealth trends, and beyond. Cal Marshall shared insight on some of the regulatory barriers to telehealth that have since been eased during Tennessee's public health emergency. Cal and the rest of the Chambliss health care team continue to distribute timely alerts regarding telehealth and other COVID-19 related topics as new guidance and laws are issued. For a look at their most recent updates, such as Tennessee General Assembly Significantly Expands Telehealth Flexibility and Payment Parity, please visit the health care section of our COVID-19 Insight Center.

Cal Marshall, a shareholder in the Business and Health Care sections, is a go-to advisor for clients seeking counsel on regulatory, compliance, cybersecurity, and data privacy matters. Over the years, he has developed an intimate knowledge of state and federal telehealth laws and regulations and often speaks to various trade groups on best practices. He also advises on entity structure, negotiation of transactions, and other corporate matters. For more details on his experience and practice, please visit Cal's bio.